Major-General MacKenzie Comes To Scarborough: And Mikhail Gorbachev Was Downtown

The Major-General's New Clothes
(Donning Loafers in Place of Combat Boots)

by Sean Brereton
Underground Contributor

While he was in charge of the United Nations' peacekeeping forces in the former Yugoslavia, Major-General Lewis MacKenzie had no idea what a media darling he had become at home. So when his wife handed him seven video tapes of coverage focused on his overseas performance he was completely surprised.

"I am the living embodiment of Marshall McLuhan's fifteen minutes of fame," MacKenzie said in an interview after his keynote speech for the annual Watts Lecture on March 31st. "I think I'm on my 402nd or -3rd day without having a break; I used to take most of my weekends, but not any more."

The public's infatuation with the now retired Major-General is far from inexplicable. He has become a symbol for what Canadians love about their country; and a reminder of what they hate. Many nations fixated on this man on their television sets during the war, but he meant something more to Canadians. MacKenzie was a peacekeeper with the maple leaf on his left soldier; but more importantly, unlike our windy politicians, he said it like it was.

Appearing before a full crowd in the Meeting Place, MacKenzie lived up to his media image. His statements were forthright; he never wavered on his opinions, his answers seemed honest and his compassion sincere.

Throughout his speech he stopped for sporadic bursts of energetic clapping from the audience. It was then clearly evident why he was so successful in Sarajevo.

He has proven a capable negotiator with factional leaders under the toughest of circumstances, and yet he is also at ease chatting it up with the guy off the street. He is a diplomat; and while he may not fit the stereotype, perhaps this is why he is so well liked.

There are many stories about the Major-General's unique style of conflict resolution. When MacKenzie was operations officer for the UN in Cyprus, he heard about some Greek soldiers firing on UN troops. MacKenzie formally requested to meet their commanding officer, asked him politely to control his men, then decked him. Suffice it to say the Major-General is not liked by everyone.

Major-General MacKenzie admits to using his new found fame to support a cause he passionately believes in: Canada's role as a peacekeeping nation. It is a palpable message Canadians like to hold of themselves -- a peacekeeping and conciliatory nation.

We hold a sense of pride about our participation in every peacekeeping mission called for by the UN. Our favourable international image, warranted or not, accurate or fictional, it is never-the-less something Canadians sheepishly admit to loving about our country. Many Canadians see MacKenzie as the embodiment of our international image.

MacKenzie's motivations for public speaking are obvious; support for the Canadians in uniform, a call for review of a defence policy written during the cold war, and a sincere thanks to the "silent majority" which supports its troops overseas.

So MacKenzie does the media circuit now. He felt he had to retire; his fame had resulted in the media demanding too much from him to perform his duties as commander of 14,000 troops in Ontario.

Major-General MacKenzie plans to do some humanitarian work for a while but admitted: "Maybe after it all dies down, I'll go back to Nova Scotia and run for politics."

Protests Organized re: UofT Cash Grab

Thumbs down to Uping fees!

Perhaps you have witnessed the orange buttons and flyers currently circulating around Scarborough Campus. If you have not perhaps you should, it could mean a difference to you and your pocketbook.

The orange flyers and pins are the beginnings of a campaign opposed to the fees hike for University of Toronto students. The motion goes before UofT's Governing Council in May. If it is passed a fees hike of $160.00 for Scarborough students would result. St. George students would pay an increase of $185.00 and Erindale students $150.00.

The money would be directed predominently towards services at the St. George campus. Administration also wants student societies to pay rent here at scarborough for the use of their current office space.

Interestingly, the fees hike is higher for Scarborough than Erindale, which still has shuttlebus service with the downtown campus.

Scarborough students would pay a total of $31,378 for space occupied by student services dowtown.

The current campaign against the fee increase is being organized by SAC, APUS and other student groups. A protest will be held on April 27th outside Simcoe Hall. Interested students can get buttons at the SCSC office to show their support.

A letter writing campaign against the fees increase is currently being organized. Students should address their letters to President Prichard and the Governing Council.

Typically, motions of this nature are passed through the Governing Council. It is important that students make there voice heard before the decison is made in May.

Current SCSC president, one of next year's Scarborough SAC Representatives, Lance Flash commented, "Evil, devious, scandalous, cold hearted; these are a few words I would use to describe the University Administration if they let this go through."

concerned members of the Underground and SCSC

Soon UofT incidental fees may be more than tuition fees. This may become a bitter reality if we allow UofT President Rob Pritchard to increase student service fees by $200. The proposed increase must be stopped immediately to prevent exponential hikes in future student fees. Student fees are presently used to cover some of the costs of student services, with the rest being covered by a fraction of tuition fees.

The decision to double campus service costs was made blindly without considering alternatives, such as cutting some services or asking students to decide which ones they value.

This proposal has come about at a time when major student organisations who would oppose such action are in transition. Oddly enough the majority of the student population will be unable to demonstrate their disapproval due to the heat of final exams.

Even during these stressful times you must voice your complaints by contracting UofT President Rob Pritchard at 978-2121 and/or writing to the Chair of Governing Council Robert McGavin, Room 106, Simcoe Hall, 27 King's College Circle, M5S 1A1. Most importantly, on April 27 at 3:30 there will be a student protest, on King's College Circle. The protest will be organised by SAC, GSU, APUS.

We know UofT students are busy people, but by helping fight this fee you may save hundreds of dollars in the future and preserve the University's obligation to provide a secure, supportive and tolerant environment for its students.

By attending this demonstration you will be voicing your opinion of what you think of these fee increases. To keep spirits high, food will be provided by the organizing councils.

Gorbachev Visits UofT: Cold War to Warm Reception

by Darlene Hearn
Underground Staff

On Thursday April 1, 1993, the University of Toronto's Convocation Hall hosted a panel discussion headlined by the former first President of the USSR, and Nobel Prize winner, Mikail Sergeyevich Gorbachev. The discussion titled "Our Common Home: World Prospects for Peace, Human Rights and the Rule of Law," dealt with issues ranging from nuclear arms reduction, ethnicity and constitutional law reforms in Russia. A panel of eight, including Nobel Prize winner John Polanyi of the Chemistry Department; Janice Gross Stein who is with the Department of Political Science and specializing in international conflict and conflict management; and Peter Solomon, with the Department of Political Science and an expert on Soviet criminal and judicial policy, introduced each issue and directed a question to Gorbachev.

Other panellists Robert Johnson, director of the Centre of Russian and East European Studies (CREES); Karen Knop of the Faculty of Law, a specialist in Soviet law reform; and two graduate students in the CREES programme, Domenic Gualteri and Todd Fogelsong. Discussion moderator, UofT President, Robert Pritchard, also had the opportunity to ask questions.

Through simultaneous translation Gorbachev was able to provide insightful and often humorous responses to the panellist's inquiries. Gorbachev discussed ideas of political and economic reforms, which include a global reduction of nuclear weapons and a decrease in defence spending.

Gorbachev answered Stein's question about the role of nuclear weapons in the post cold-war era by stating that, "All of us lost in the cold war -- especially the US and USSR, and that we all won by ending it". Stein quickly grabbed the opportunity and asked Gorbachev if she could quote him in the introduction of her upcoming book We All Lost the Cold War.

The discussion also raised some other important issues. The problems of inter-ethnic conflict in the Commonwealth of Independent States (CIS), Yugoslavia, and Canada were stressed by Gorbachev. He also expressed his concerns about a Russian constitutional judiciary. The protection of human rights and rule of law are a priority of former President Gorbachev, but not if it, "transforms a political dictatorship to a dictatorship of law."

Gorbachev's quick wit became evident when a stray pigeon found its way into Convocation Hall. The pigeon chose to swoop down over Gorbachev while he was discussing the upcoming Yeltsin/Clinton summit in Vancouver. Gorbachev pronounced it as a symbol to the media -- the "dove of peace".

Consistent reports indicate that the former Soviet Union has undergone many political, economic and social changes in the last few years. Further, the CIS has also apparently suffered great economic losses and is in dire need of financial and medical assistance. Gorbachev stated that the Republics would not accept handouts from governments but would rather work in partnership with charitable organizations.

Gorbachev ended his eight day, five city tour of Canada by launching The Canada - CIS Development Foundation, in Toronto. The charitable foundation exits to help alleviate the immediate medical emergency, contribute to the development of improved health care systems and to cultivate longer-term relationships of trust and co-operation between Canada and the CIS.

When the discussion ended, Gorbachev thanked the panel members and the audience, and bid them good-bye in English.

Scarborough Students "Just Say No" To Varsity Levy Increase

by Michelle Cloke
News Editor

On Thursday April 1st students at all three campuses of the University of Toronto voted down the proposed levy increase for The Varsity.

In total 656 students voted, 352 voted no, while 302 voted yes; a margin of 50 votes. Here at Scarborough 51 students voted no and 23 students voted yes.

The widest voter margin was at Scarborough and St. Micheal's. At St. Micheal's 50 students voted no and 32 voted yes.

Naomi Klein, current editor of The Varsity, felt the large margins at St. Micheal's and Scarborough were to be expected. Klein stated, "The Varsity made promises to increase local coverage, but that just did not compensate for years of neglect."

Klein stated that although the close results made the "No" vote frustrating it had been a worthwhile exercise. The paper, which is the UofT's largest, was able to hear people's concern's and constructive criticism.

The Varsity currently collects a non-refundable student levy of $1.25 from all UofT students. Had the referendum succeeded the publication would have begun receiving $4.00 from each full-time student enrolled at UofT. The Varsity is publishes 50,000 copies twice weekly which are distributed throughout UofT.

Post Office Going, Going Gone...Sort Of

Canada Post is scheduled to withdraw from Scarborough College today. Administration was considering purchasing the rights to function as a stamp shop from the same location.

If successful, Sandi Parsons' job would remain quite similar to what it is now. Only specific functions would be lost that, apparently, students rarely use anyway.

Enrol Today, Don't Wait And Miss A Day Of School

Applications are now being accepted for the upcoming summer term at Scarborough College. Remember, that if you do not pay now, you will never pay at Scarborough.

Speculation exists that enrolment will be phenomenal this year as many students face the reality of few summer jobs.

Quiet Week in Scarborough Residence?

Residence has begun "Quiet Week" once again. Noise limitations are set for the majority of hours in the day.

What qualifies as an illegal noise? And how do they prove it?

[Ed. 's Note: Good Luck to whomever attempts to enforce that baby!]

Scarborough Campus Student Press Elected

Scarborough students voted in their representatives to the Scarborough Campus Student's Press (SCSP) last week, on Wednesday March 31. The 1992-1993 Board of Directors accepted the results as official and in good standing at its regular meeting on Monday.

Michael VanDusen and Simone Rajah were elected as the full-time students' representatives.

Marie McNulty's application was accepted for the position of the part-time students' representative.

No member of UofT Staff applied (again) this year. The position which is shared with Alumni was re-applied to by current alumni representative James Anok. Anok, who graduated with a major in sociology in 1992 was accepted to continue on the Board next year.

As SCSP publishes the Underground, its editor Jason Pasquale will also have a seat on the Board of Directors.

Two additional members will be elected from within the ranks of the underground Staff.

Thanks to everyone who voted, and to the offices of the registrar for their help in the procedure.

Administration Attempts To Blind-Side The Students

Or "Levy, Levy, Everywhere...If It Breaks Them We Don't Care."

25 weeks into a 26 week term students are finally beginning to work together. If nothing else at university we learned the bitter truths of the "real" world.

We saw our role models (ie. Admin.) wait until the opportune moment to strike in what amounts to a cash grab. Administration is attempting to push through a fees increase in the midst of final exams; coincidentally when all the student lobby groups are undergoing the process of stepping down to their successors.

Students are also being victimised at Scarborough by the shut-down of our Fees Office. Downtown will maintain theirs, but paying at school will no longer be an option at Scarborough.

Canada Post is also pulling out, the Scarborough Campus Post Office will be no more. Administration is placating with promises of opening a stamp shop in place; even if that is an adequate replacement no one will go one record with that as a promise.

The "man in charge" of that one would be Mr. Bryon. Unfortunatley he is one of many administrors at Scarborough who have all "decided" to leave their jobs recently. I suppose the burgeoning job market for administrators was just too appealing for them to refuse.

I digress, to be fair to Administration I should not limit their tactics to waiting for opportune moments. In fact, opportunity is something they create.

Our government sets a maximum amount that Universities can raise tuition. This is, in part, an attempt to ensure that an education is not restricted to the financially affluent. (Us poor folks deserve a chance ya'know.)

The benefit of a good education can be seen in what our Administrators (notice the OUR there?) did next. The law prohibits increasing tuition, so they decided to increase incidental fees. See, that way they're dealing above board — Right?

You can decide on the morality of that one, unfortunately it seems the legality is in order.

Adding insult to injury, it seems that this type of increase may go through without approval from the students. There will be no referendum, no right for us to vote. In order to be heard you will have to yell, and it seems they are doing their best not to listen.

The good news is that you can do something.

A student rally is being organised to protest this obscenity. On April 27 at 3:30 be at Simcoe Hall on King's College Circle. Every body will make a difference, attend and bring your friends - all of them.

In addition, please fill out one of these form letters, though if you can write your own (even just copying this out verbatim) it would be more effective. Place them in Campus Mail addressed to the Chair of Governing Council, Robert McGavin, Room 106, Simcoe Hall, 27 King's College Circle, M5S 1A1.

Chair of Governing Council
Robert McGavin,

As a student of UofT I am opposed to the proposed incidental fee hike.

I strongly believe that a motion of this nature must be brought to the students in the form of a referendum.

Please ensure that all the members of Governing Council are aware of these concerns before they vote; they represent not only my personal feelings but those of my peers as well.

Sincerely,

Harvey Heitel Makes a Good "Bad Leitenant"

by Wes Grant
Entertainment Editor

"Bad Lieutenant" is a harrowing drama about a 'bad' New York City cop who has descended into his own personal hell. Harvey Keitel gives an emotionally powerful performance as a morally corrupted cop, known only in the film as the lieutenant.

This is a character who has long since fallen from grace, as the film depicts in his lifestyle of degradation and corruption. The audience is witness to scenes of the lieutenant involved in binges of alcohol and drug abuse, sexual deviance, and acts of police corruption; such as the attempted confiscation of drugs from a crime scene.

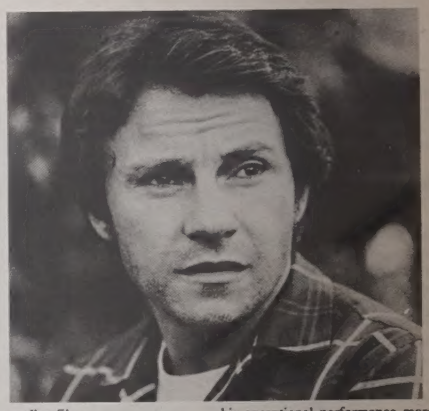
The film revolves around this man's daily life, from scenes of him shooting up drugs to his involvement in kinky sex games with two prostitutes (and this is just at the beginning of the film!). The film is quite explicit in the nature of depicting the lieutenant's lifestyle, as is most clearly shown in the scenes of drug use and in the sex scenes.

The most explicit sex scenes are when Keitel's character is harassing two teenagers and he has them talk dirty to him as he masturbates; and there is the graphic portrayal of the rape of a nun by two street hoods. Keitel, a veteran of such films as "Taxi Driver", "Thelma and Louise", and the recent "Reservoir Dogs", has put his heart and soul into a compelling performance. Watching what this character is like gives the audience a sense of repulsion and disgust, but there is also a sense of awe as one watches this brutally realistic portrayal by Keitel. This is a role that many actors would be unable to portray convincingly, and many would be hesitant to play such a morally degraded character, but in Keitel's capable hands the audience is captured by his riveting performance.

The movie, though, is beset by some major flaws. Writer and director Abel Ferrara, responsible for such films as "Ms.45" and "King of New York", has crafted this film to depict one man's personal hell but he has left out one major element necessary to the filmmaking process: some semblance of a plot!!

Granted, there are the subplots of the nun's rape and of the lieutenant's escalating gambling debts, but there is no main plot which drives the film. The subplots are not focused enough to give the film its driving force. Ferrara moves the film along with scene after scene of the lieutenant's corrupted lifestyle, yet there is no reason given as to what motivates this character. What has led this character to his present state of despair?

This is never answered and it ends up becoming frustrating. Had the director decided to enter elements of the motivations of this character it would have made for a much more rewarding film.



This is a film that is not to all tastes and definitely not for the timid. "Bad Lieutenant" is recommended though to fans of Harvey Keitel as his exceptional performance more than makes up for the structural flaws of the film.

Ice-T does Home Invasion

by Jeff Leduc
Contributor

"Home Invasion" is Ice-T's first release since parting ways with his former record producer, Warner Brothers. The split was caused over disagreements about cover design and language content of his albums.

"Home Invasion" is a rap album unlike Ice-T's release last summer of the controversial "Body Count," which featured the the track "Cop Killer". The LP contains three major themes which are pro-peace, anti-drug, and anti-racism. The overall theme is summed up by Ice-T himself, "'Home Invasion'. The invasion of black rage into the American white youth is the last stage of preparation for the revolution. Prepare- it's goin' down".

The first of nineteen tracks is a warning about the album itself, "You are now listening to an Ice-T LP. If you are offended by words like fuck, shit, etc., take the tape out now." The second track, before the political views become predominant in the songs, is titled "It's On". This song deals with Warner Brothers no longer wanting to do business with Ice-T.

The first half of the album is very political, with songs dealing with gang life, violence, drug dealers, and racial tension. The songs that deal with these themes include "Home Invasion", "Addicted to Danger", "G-Style"(which stands for gangster style), and "Race War." "Race War" is about racial inequality despite what the title seems to imply. The second half of the album is not very political and many of the songs include guest rappers. "Pimp Behind the Wheel" is a silly track rapped by DJ Evil E the Great; "Depths of Hell" is rapped by Danny Nitro, "99 Problems and a Woman Isn't One" is rapped by Brother Marquis and Ice-T; and the final song with a guest rapper is "Funky Gripsia" which is rapped by a fourteen year old female rapper named Grip.

The final song of the album is "Message to the Soldier" which is a message to the soldiers of the streets, and the soldiers of the studio such as Alladin and Ice Cube. "Home Invasion" sends a message of peace to the gangs of L.A. and warnings to drug dealers to get out while they can and to stay in school and build their minds.

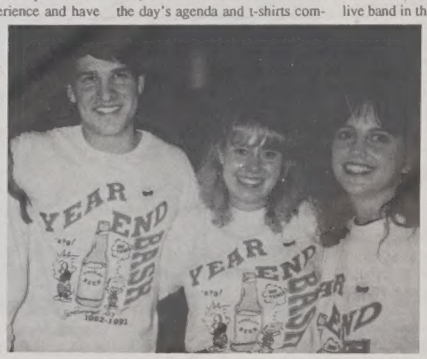
It is of course told in the style of Ice-T which means there is a warning of explicit lyrics contained. This album will not disappoint Ice-T fans.

A Great End To Another Year In Rez

Rez Bash
by Michelle Cloke

"Pleasure and Pain pervade the whole of life experience and have the capacity of exerting a decisive influence for a life of excellence of virtue and happiness".

This is the quote that will always be part of the memories of the 1992/93 Rez year! Not! It's on the back of our new t-shirts so we'll be looking at it untill we die! Yes folks this past weekend it was time again for another year end rez bash.



As ususal it was sold out and a great time was had by all. For people who live in rez (as well as those who joined the party from off campus), we got fed, we played outside - a killer game of capture the flag , we drank (as the boys in the rugby change rooms will attest to) a great deal of inexpensive beer, had great tunes, and got a new shirt (Calvin kicks butt!). We'll all be satisfied and happy until next year!

The day began with a hot breakfast (bacon, eggs toast, orange punch and some sort of fruit concoction) in the Residence Centre where the day's agenda and t-shirts commemorating the event were distributed. Next it was off to the valley to play an industrial sized game of capture the flag (in which someone became rambunctious and ended the game in the first hour). After running around for an hour or so and helping get the van out of the mud behind the Principals Rez., then climbing up from the valley, it was time for a barbeque held in Phase 1 (the remnants were still laying around on Sunday).

Tummy filled people returned to their homes to put on their spiffy new shirts (the piss-a-lot beer taking full effect) to attend the dance and live band in the Rez Centre.

The band was Blue Texas, they did a great job (the crowd did not realize that the Bare Naked Ladies song "IF I had a $1 000 000 had ended) and kept everyone dancing to there favorite tunes. The D.J.'s were the Spin Twins who played both great new tunes as well as the oldies and kept everyone on the floor until after 2:00am (although teaching the Bus Stop to them didn't work). The kegs ran out around 12:30, but in the spirit of the year end bash they went straight for the botled beer. The day was finished with grand Rez tradition, a sing-a-long and campfire, complete with guitars and harmonica, out at the fire pit (somehow a keg appeared at the fire from an unknown source) until dawn.

The day was a resounding success. Tickets were sold out by Tuesday, with people still coming out to attend any event they could (The award for the best sneck-in excuse goes to a friend of one of the Spin Twins. The day was a bit cold (snow in the afternoon will confirm this) but that did not stop anyone from coming out or having an awesome time. Thanks to everyone who helped organize, worked at, andvolunteer at the1992/93 year end rez bash.

APUS

ASSOCIATION OF PART-TIME UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS 1992-1993

All students who take 3.5 courses or less during the winter session or who take courses during the summer session are members of the Association of Part-time Undergraduate Students. APUS uses the $10 fee all of these students pay to provide services, lobby on issues of concern to part-time students and offer opportunities for participation. The Annual Report gives APUS' members and other members of the U of T community a thorough description of our activities for the past year.

There were roughly 12,000 students enroled part-time during the winter session of 1992-1993, about half of them on the suburban campuses and half at the various colleges and faculties on the St. George campus. Enrolment in summer session continues to grow; over 16,000 students now take summer courses, making U of T home to the largest summer session in North America. As a result of this growth, APUS has deliberately re-examined the services it offers and the issues which affect part-time undergraduates on all campuses and in each session.

WHAT APUS DOES AT SCARBOROUGH

APUS performs two basic functions: we provide services and political representation for all part-time students in the winter and summer sessions. Many of the issues which affect part-time students are the same across the university, and a concerted response is necessary to protect part-time student interests at the provincial and federal government levels as well.

Much of APUS' budget is devoted to lobbying efforts designed to help all part-time students at U of T. At the same time, APUS is committed to providing an equitable level of services to students on all three U of T campuses. Due to the St. George location of the APUS office, for many years APUS has determined that the best way to fulfill its mandate to provide services to Scarborough students is through the Scarborough Campus Students Council (SCSC), located in Room R3042, at the end of the R-Wing.

At Scarborough, part-time students do not have a separate organization, but are part of the SCSC, which represents full and part-time student's interests at Scarborough College. Part-time students are represented on SCSC by a Part-time Commissioner - Evan Anderson. The Part-time Commission ensures that services and representation are provided to part-time students. The Part-time Commission works with the Scarborough College administration, the Scarborough College council and its committees to ensure the voice of part-time students is heard.

In order to support part-time students at Scarborough, APUS gives a grant of $2.75 of the $10 APUS fee collected from each Scarborough student to SCSC. This funding is given so that SCSC can provide an equitable level of services and representation to that enjoyed by part-time students on the St. George campus. Additionally, SCSC receives its own $2.75 per student incidental fee collected from each Scarborough part-time student.

SCSC provides a variety of services to full and part-time students, such as a copy centre, locker rentals, free phones, a computer room and a typing room for student essay writing, as well as staff to answer questions from part-time students. This year, SCSC used the funding it received from APUS to hold social events for part-time students, to maintain the SCSC office, and to make donations to groups such as the Walksafer Program.

In 1992-93, APUS worked with SCSC to continue to enhance the relationship between the two organizations. In 1993-94, both organizations will continue to work closely together. APUS expects a new funding arrangement to be concluded in 1993.

CAMPUS-WIDE ISSUES

Most of APUS' lobbying efforts this year have focused on improving the financial accessibility of education for part-time students. Cutbacks at virtually every level of government have meant reduced financial aid and/or increased fees for students.

As a method of reducing the impact of fee increases on students, APUS has lobbied for a better student financial aid program. We have argued at both the federal and provincial levels that financial assistance should be fully accessible to part-time students.

APUS is currently in the midst of a campaign to oppose a mandatory "general student services fee" being imposed by the U of T administration. The fee is likely to be about $65 for part-time and summer students and is intended to cover the costs of all student services — services which have been covered to date by the operating budget of the University. APUS has taken the position that this change in relationship between the University and its student services represents a critical turning point and one that should be avoided. We are working closely with the Students' Administrative Council and the Graduate Students' Union to oppose this fee.

APUS has represented part-time students on many U of T committees dealing with issues from Personal Safety to the quality of teaching at U of T.

INTERNAL ISSUES

The need to prevent a deficit in 1992-93 compelled the APUS Board to make changes to the way the organization is run. APUS receives 86 per cent of its revenue from student fees, which is spent providing services and representation to part-time students.

The APUS Board was determined to be fiscally responsible in 1992-93. As a result, the APUS Finance Committee recommended a number of changes to keep APUS' finances on a break-even basis. A combination of new revenues and reductions in expenses resulted in changes to the way APUS operates. The result of these decisions is that APUS has brought its budget deficit from 1991-92 under control: consequently, APUS should be able to operate in a fiscally-responsibly manner in the future.

The Part-time Student Handbook, including evaluations of Erindale, St. George and Scarborough evening and summer courses, was mailed to all students in August. Feedback on the handbook attests to its usefulness as a handy source of information about the services and opportunities available for part-time students.

Every year, APUS operates a barbecue at U of T Day and contributes the proceeds to a worthy cause. This year, that cause was our own bursary fund which we fortified due to increasing demand for APUS bursaries. The APUS-SAC Undergraduate Teaching Awards were again a success. Awards were given out at a reception at Hart House in March to teachers whose talents in the classroom won the approval of both their students and the selection committee.

The past year has been a challenging one for APUS, but we are optimistic for 1993-94. The support and feedback from our constituents gives us the motivation to strive for further improvements in all areas of our mandate.

For the full version of the Annual Report on APUS' activities, please see the April 6 issue of The Varsity.

___ Do you try to do as much as possible in the least amount of time?
___ Do you become impatient with delays or interruptions?
___ Do you always have to win at games to enjoy yourself?
___ Do you find yourself speeding up the car to beat the red light?
___ Are you likely to ask for or indicate you need help with a problem?
___ Do you constantly seek the respect and admiration of others?
___ Are you overly critical of the way others do their work?
___ Do you have the habit of looking at your watch or clock often?
___ Do you constantly strive to better your position and achievements?
___ Do you spread yourself "too thin" in terms of your time?
___ Do you have the habit of doing more than one thing at a time?
___ Do you frequently get angry or irratble?
___ Do you have little time for hobbies or time by yourself?
___ Do you have a tendency to talk to quickly or hasten conversation?
___ Do you consider yourself hard-driving?
___ Do your friends or relatives consider you hard-driving?
___ Do you have a tendency to get involved in multiple projects?
___ Do you have a lot of deadlines in your work?
___ Do you feel vaguely guilty if you relax and do nothing during leisure?
___ Do you take on too many responsibilities?

___ TOTAL

Answer Key:

If your score is between 20 and 30, chances are you are non-productiveof life lacks stimulation.

A score between 30 and 50 designates a good balance in your ability to handle anb control stress.

If you tallied up a score ranging between 51 and 60, your stress level is marginal and you are bordering on being excessively tense.

If your total number of points exceeds 60, you have a high stress level and may be excessivly tense.

El Poema

for John Coltrain (1926-1967)

Mi amigo se levanta
y dice, "Voy a siguir el sol. Adiós." Y anda a la calle. Cuando no lo veo, tengo miedo, pienso
algún día el va a volver ciego.
- - - - - -
Hay un hombre, con un bastón blanco, camina lentamente cerca de la casa. Empezo a lorar.
" Ola! Viaje el mundo!
Mi vida fue magnifica!
Tomé vino con solderos en Brasil. Luche con los toros en España. Conozco a los ladrones como mis hermanos."
" Pero, no tienes tus ojos?"
" Para qué vales los ojos?
Mirar la televisión
Leer los periodicos?
O llorar mis exitos?"
" Como?" No estoy escuchando.
Una mujer joven camina elegantemente en la calle.

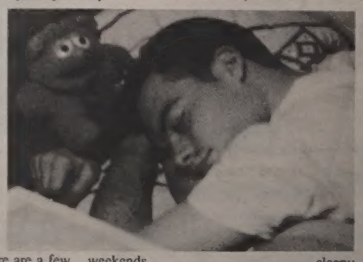
Helpful Hints for the Good Night's Rest You Need

The end of term has quietly crept up on us once again. And, if you're study habits are anything like mine, you've probably found yourself getting very little, if any, sleep in the past week. Pulling all-nighters to complete essays and assignments, cramming for term tests and lying awake in bed, worrying about the amount of work that you have due, can seriously throw off your sleep schedule. Once final exams have come you will want to get yourself back into a healthy sleeping pattern to ensure your success. Here are a few helpful hints to get you back on track:



-Sleep only as much as you need to feel refreshed. Lingering in bed for long periods of time can actually hinder attempts to sleep. Eliminate daytime naps.

-Establish a regular hour for going to bed and a regular time to get up and stick to this hour, even on weekends.

-Try to relax during the evening. Clear your mind of worries and problems before going to bed.

-Moderate exercise in the afternoon or early evening can help you to feel tired. However, heavy exercise just before going to bed can have a stimulating effect, and should be avoided.

-Avoid drinking alcoholic or caffeine-containing beverages (tea, coffee, cola) in the evening. You may become drowsy or even fall asleep after drinking alcohol only to wake up half way through the night. Caffeine is a stimulant and will keep you from sleeping.

-Do not try to hard to fall asleep. If you do not fall asleep after a reasonable time in bed, get up and do something until you do feel sleepy, and then go back and try again.

Anybody Ever Hear of the Mullock Cup ?

by Henry Chiu
Underground Contributor

What is the oldest football trophy in the world ? No, it is not the Grey Cup, nor is it the Vanier Cup, and certainly not the Super Bowl.

Its the Mullock Cup which was first presented one hundred years ago. Since the emergence of both the Vanier Cup and the Grey Cup, the Mullock Cup has become the championship trophy of the University Interfaculty League.

I would expect most of you were not aware of the existence of this trophy, nor that you necessarily care about it. However, for those who have been involved in Scarborough athletics or have any school spirit whatsoever, please continue with this article.

The Scarborough Maroons (I'm sure most of you knew that was our nickname, right?) have been the most dominant team throughout the 1980's. In fact, Scarborough played in the finals twice in the past three years, once bringing the championship home.

In light of the cancellation of the intramural program at the University, there is a strong possibility that the football program will be revived for one more year since this one coming up happens to coincide with the centennial anniversary of the Mullock Cup.

In order for this program to be reinstated, we'll need competent players and lots of fan support. For those of you who think that football is a game in which a bunch of dumb jocks bang heads, all the football players will willingly attend a "Preventing Violence Against Women" seminar to show our sensitive side.

If you would like to be part of the great Scarborough tradition or you have any good ideas in supporting a team please contact: Henry 940-1740 or Lou 484-9698.

Shuffle the Lines, or is that the Divisions

by Damir Rukovansski
Underground Contributor

Over the past few weeks, the head suits of the NHL have been tossing around many hockey teams in their quest for realignment. For Leaf fans this means Toronto and Montreal could be in the same division. Building up rivalries and grouping teams according to geographic location is what it is all about. The best way to create interest and put fans in the seats is to have rivalries such as Montreal and Toronto, Edmonton and Calgary, and Quebec and Montreal. Cutting down on travel time by having teams in regional divisions makes teams less fatigued and more prepared to play on those road trips. Having regional divisions gives them more identity, something that has been lacking with the current system. For example, putting the Leafs in the Adams division and then renaming it the 'Northeast division' makes more sense because all the teams are in the northeast. The name 'Adams' does not say anything about the division itself. Look at other pro leagues like the NFL and NBA (I won't use baseball as an example because they still think Atlanta is a west division team), they have teams in regional divisions. The NHL should do it. Here is my solution for NHL realignment:

EAST DIVISION: Formerly the Patrick division. Washington Capitals That's right. Leave it alone. New York Rangers If it ain't broke, don't fix it. Philadelphia Flyers Pittsburgh Penguins New York Islanders New Jersey Devils

NORTHEAST DIVISION: Formerly the Adams division. Boston Bruins. Keep all the current teams in but Buffalo Sabres just add Toronto to it. There should Montreal Canadiens be some good Leafs—Sabres and Leafs¬ Quebec Nordiques Bruins rivalries to go with the Leafs Ottawa Senators—Canadiens tilts. Hartford Whalers (Hamilton?) Toronto Maple Leafs

WEST DIVISION: Formerly the Smythe division. Vancouver CanucksTake out the Winnipeg Jets and add Edmonton Oilers the Anaheim expansion team. Between Calgary Flames San Jose, Anaheim and Edmonton, look Los Angeles Kings for this to be a weak division for San Jose Sharks many years. Anaheim (Not the Ducks).

CENTRAL DIVISION: Formerly the Norris division. Chicago Blackhawks Add the Winnipeg Jets from the Smythe, Detroit Red Wings add the expansion Miami franchise Minnesota North Stars and take out Toronto. Leaf fans will miss St. Loius Blues the Detoit and Chicago bouts, but the Leafs can pound on Ottawa instead of Tampa Bay Lightning eight times a year.

IS THERE A DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE?...Right about the same time Penguins' star Mario Lemieux was diagnosed with Hodgkin's disease, goalie Tom Barrasso was diagnosed as having the chicken pox. Then a few days later Barrasso was told he did'nt have it. A few days after he was once a again diagnosed with the chickenpox. Not only did it delay Mario's treatment, it also caused confusion for Barrasso. What kind of team doctors are working there? Hey doc, how does this sound? You're fired. No wait, come back. No, really, you're fired.

MOVIN' ON UP...The lowly Ottawa Senators are no longer last overall. When the Senators beat the Oilers last Wednesday, they moved ahead of the Sharks. Look for the Sharks and Senators to 'fight' for the cellar and the right to pick first in the '93 entry draft.

OTHER HOCKEY NOTES...The Penguins are 6—5—1 since Mario left...the Sharks are winless in their last 18 games...Sabres' star Alexander Mogilny scored his 50th goal last Wednesday against the Whalers in only his 46th game...the Leafs are 0—1—8 in overtime this season...the Penguins are 15—5—2 against their division, the next best in the Patrick belongs to the Islanders at 12—11—2.

WHATCHA SAY SUCKAH'?..."The Brazilian judge did not make an error (in punching an 8 instead of a 9) in judgement; it was only after she found out who she was judging that she said she made an error."—Kristen Babb—Sprague, the American gold medal winner in synchronized swimming in the '92 summer games, responding on the question of whether Canadian Sylvie Frichette was robbed of a gold medal in the event.

Corruption in Positions of Power Exposed: Film at Eleven?!?

Please be aware that impeachment procedures have been initiated against the current Editor-in-Chief, and Editor-in-Chief-Elect, of the Underground - Jason L. Pasquale.

As seen the above photo, Pasquale has been engaging in conduct "unbefitting of an Editor" as defined in Bylaw 1 of the Scarborough Campus Student Press and elaborated upon in the Policy and Procedures Manual of the Underground.

They young lady seen in the photograph is a former member of the Underground staff. The nature of her involvement remains unclear at this time; the ombudspeople are currently investigating.

Additionally impropriety results as this young lady was recently wed to another. Her name cannot be released as her recent husband may be unduly hurt be the publicity.

As seen in the cover-photo of this issue, Pasquale has also been caught in similar acts previously. Both women were also members of last year's staff, coinciding with Pasquale's start at the paper. The incident recorded in the photo appears shortly after Pasquale was named Editor for the upcoming (now current) academic year. Neither could be located for comment, though it has been confirmed that one of the women has left the country for India with no plans to return.

Pasquale does have a reputation for pursuing women. [Asst. Ed. not: "Giggolo!"]

Michael VanDusen, Pasquale's Assistant Editor commented, "I am astonished at his performance, not only is it unprofessional it is morally incorrect. I am pushing hard for the impeachment .. I will use everything in my power to make this happen."

Investigations into alleged substance abuse are also being pursued. The photo clearly shows Pasquale using alcohol to encourage participation from his victims. The cover photo also indicates clear abuse of other substances. Pasquale has been quoted saying, "Ecstasy, pure, simple, unadulterated ecstasy."

Those wishing to comment on Pasquale's conduct are invited to attend a General Meeting on April 27 at 3:30 pm. Due to the unusually high response already received in regards to this matter the meeting will be held at Sincoe Hall, located on King's College Circle.

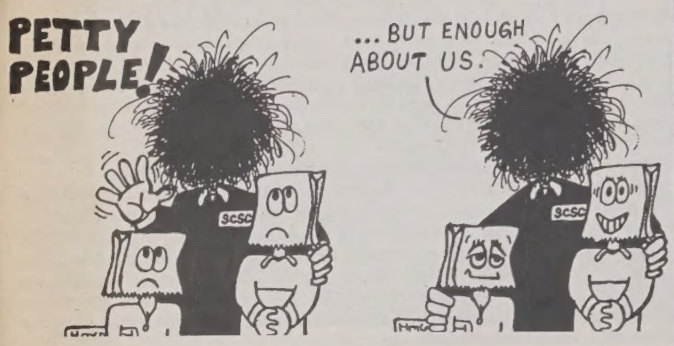
THE SCSC ELECTION COMMITTEE SPEAKS



Gambling Permitted On Scarborough Campus?

by Wes Grant
Underground Masthead

One poor aspect of life on Scarborough Campus, in fact life in Scarborough for that matter, is the lack of entertainment value. This is all about to change now since the government's recent ruling to allow gambling. As a result Scarborough Campus Students' Council has obtained several slot machines. The slot machines will be a dollar a pull and several will be placed in the arcade and the pub.

SCSC has also obtained permission to hold casino nights next school year. Student council was contacted as to what would happen with any revenue that came from the gambling nights or slot machines and if that money would go to charity. The response from President Lance Flash was, "No comment." Flash did refer to the casino girls but refused to allow us to use the quote.

Is this just a scheme for the council to pocket some money so they can go drinking in the pub? To this question SCSC provided a press release stating, "No comment."

Regardless of SCSC's motives for the machines and casino nights it will be a welcome addition to the campus entertainment scene. Hopefully this will spice up the rather bleak entertainment scene that Scarborough has to offer.

Varsity Levy Increase A Huge Success

When all the ballots were counted for the Varsity referendum the results were staggering. The final vote stood with an opposition of only 6 votes - that's right, only 6 Scarborough students voted no.

With the phenomenal success of the referendum the Varsity plans another one next year with another increase of $10 per students.

Outer Lot to be Paved

This summer while most of Scarborough students are at their summer jobs the University will be paving the outer lot.

Students will no longer have to worry about scraping the bottom of their cars trying to find a place to park.

This course of action was decided upon when students held a sit-in outside the Parking Permits office last Wednesday.

G&B Catering Bought Out By McDonalds

McDonalds is looking to expand its horizons by locating a restaurant at Scarborough Campus.

The Restaurant chain decided that it would be profitable to replace G&B Catering by 1994.

The sight for the franchaise is yet to be determined but McDonalds has made it clear it will have the restaurant on campus (Robarts, eat your heart out).

Scarborough Campus Book Store Closing Too!

The campus book store is facing the same fate as the post office - it too is being close or rather moved downtown anyway.

This closure is due to the cut backs the university is performing on wasted services.

Our book store is joining the donwtown book store after this year although it is unclear if it will remain in Scarborough throughout the summer.

Barn Blown Sky High

On Sunday night at around 2:30 am. the barn in the valley exploded into flames- debris was scattered everywhere.

The fire marshal is still investigating the cause of the explosion and has not ruled out arson as of yet.

The barn was used as a storage depot by plant services as well as the Drama Department.

Apathy, in this School, Hell No!!!

I was amazed the other day. I was walking by the Gallery the other day and could not believe my eyes - there must have been over seventy students attending an opening of one of the new exhibits. The bartender from the Attic was overwhelmed by the number of people wanting a drink. They went through an entire order of liquor and beer and the bartender had to send for more. The school spirit was again pleasing to see from the active Scarborough students.

Apathy, the one thing this school can not be accused of! This spirit coincides with what I saw last week at an interfaculty basketball game in our gymnasium. The crowd yelled and screamed every time one of our players scored. To be there and feel the flow of the crowd's energy and the waving of all the banners made me proud to be a Scarborough student - Duke, eat your heart out - FSU you ain't got nothing on us.

Our intramural sports are again number one in all of Ontario. When you have over 500 students signing-up for one particular league, say Kangaball, there is no comparison. In total over 4000 students participate in intramural sports - with numbers like these no wonder we are number one.

Apathy, the one thing this school can not be accused of!

The SCSC pub night last Thursday was a blow-out. With over 400 students in the Attic (as Peter Smith ignored capacity once again) there was barely room to move. Like every other SCSC pub this year, it kicked butt compared to all the other university pubs - even Western is shamed in comparison.

Apathy, the one thing this school can not be accused of!

Mosaic III, Tapestry, what a fashion show. With designers like Ralph Lauren and Giorgio Armani, it was worth it having them. The show was impeccable, going off without a glitch. With a turnout of over 1000 people the Meeting Place was packed to the point of standing room only. All of the SCSC representatives were in attendance and were overwhelmed by the awe inspiring performances of the models.

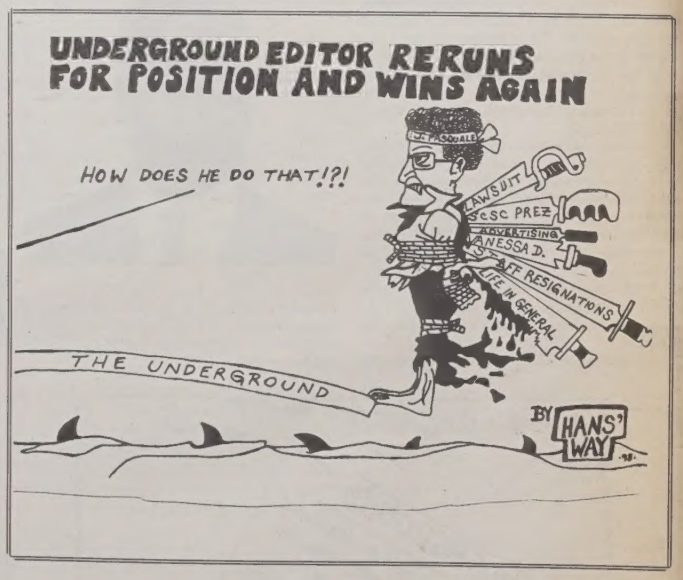
Apathy, the one thing this school can not be accused of!

SCSC is where all of the school's spirit comes from. With all of them having a perfect attendance record at their pub nights, it is no wonder the pub is packed beyond belief. Their spirit shines also through in the way they perform their duties in office. I don't remember the last time I went to use a photocopier and it was out of paper, they seem to have an unending supply of paper, and the info sign in the H-Wing hall below SCSC - it never missed a month. If not for the example that was set by the Student Council, Scarborough might not have the best school spirit in Ontario.

Apathy, the one thing this school can not be accused of!

This goes to show that Scarborough students have the best school spirit of any university I know.

Apathy, the one thing this school can not be accused of!



A Comment On The Editor

I am writing to the Underground in order to express my appreciation for editor Jason Pasquale. I find pleasure in reading his editorials every week as they are informative and provide insight for the students.

All the accusations that he is accused of are wrongly placed upon him. He must work hard at producing a paper every week, I know how hard it is as I was staff on a newspaper at my high school.

I also feel that he is being wrongly accused in the incident of his alleged misconduct with certain staff members. I have known Jason for a long time and he would never do such a thing.

Scarborough To Host Cast Of Hundreds for DeNiro Flick

by Wes Grant
Entertainment Editor

Sundance Productions will be making use of Scarborough Campus in the filming of their new movie, tentatively titled "City of Angels", which stars none other than Robert DeNiro. The film has currently been shooting in and around Metro Toronto for the last four weeks. The storyline (at least as much as the company would release) deals with the overtaking of America by the combined forces of a number of radical paramilitary organizations.

DeNiro is once again in the role of the villain, as he plays the leader of the organization. Scarborough Campus has been chosen for location shooting due to the unique design of the college, though the role it plays in the film was not given. It is speculated that it will serve as the paramilitary organization's headquarters.

The production company has put the call out for extras between the ages of 20-27. Those who are chosen will be required for the one day, and most likely night, of filming. The filming will commence on Friday April 9th and should finish early the following morning. The producers were only able to use the college space during this time since classes will have just ended and the offices and library will be closed due to the Good Friday holiday. Alfred Newman, the casting director in charge of hiring extras, has requested that those interested should be present at the college no later than 8:00 a.m. in the Meeting Place. There will only be fifty to sixty extras chosen so he recommends those interested arrive early. Extras chosen will be required to be present throughout most of the night and they will be paid between $75-$100, and Mr. Newman has added that no previous experience is required.

Those interested in a chance to be an extra in a Robert DeNiro film should make sure that they are present early on April 9th in the Meeting Place, as it is likely the positions will be filled very quickly.

Drama Students Stiffed Again

by Wes Grant
Entertainment Editor

Once again the drama students of Scarborough College are being left out in the cold, as the plans for this summer's renovations of the "Black Box" theatre have been cancelled indefinitely.

The renovations to the theatre space, which were to begin in the upcoming weeks, have been scraped as Administration has decided to reroute the funds for the paving of the outer parking lot. The decision came down last Thursday afternoon, and at this point and time the Drama department has been unable to be reached for comment.

This is not the first time that drama students have been shafted, as those who remember the "Scarborough Hall" fiasco can surely attest to. Scarborough Hall was the proposed construction of a new building which would have housed a new theatre. The money which had been collected, approximately $400,000, had been proposed to go into the renovations of the "Black Box" theatre after the Scarborough Hall project flew through.

The theatre as it is now is inadequate to needs of the drama productions. There is poor lighting and sound quality, and there is only a limited number of people that can be seated for a performance. The renovations were hopefully going to improve the theatre space so as to make it somewhat adequate for the productions. The excellent productions put on by the drama department have been marred only by this poor theatre space.

This only shows once again the lack of importance and recognition given to drama, as well as the other arts on campus. By deciding that the outer parking lot is more important than the cultural pursuits of the students, the Administration is sending out a clear message to the students enrolled in the arts programs at the college: you are less important than some people's cars.

The money had been present in the parking auxiliary fund, but this money has gone to be put to use on the downtown campus. Administrating has been flooded with complaints about the poor condition of the outer parking lot and a quick solution to elevate the problem seems to have been on the top of their agenda, and since the funds for the renovation had not yet been used they decided the money was going to be re-routed to what is viewed as a more necessary cost.

You have to ask yourself which is more important, a parking lot that will not ruin your car or some cultural value? Administration has made it clear that the drama productions are not an important part of life here at the college, and that a half descent parking lot is a high priority. The shameful part of this is that drama students and their productions will suffer.

What the films are '93

by Wes Grant

With the summer quickly approaching, theatres will soon be glutted with a stream of movies which the studios all hope will be big hits. Some of the films have the potential to be blockbusters while others are sure to die a quick death at the box office. Once again this year, sequels seem to be the big order as they usually ensure box office dollars. There is really only one sequel this summer which has box office potential. This film is "Star Wars: Fall of the Republic". This film, destined for success, is the first "Star Wars" film in ten years -- is highly anticipated by fans. The production on this one has been very tight-lipped and filming locations have been kept secret, and no clues to the story have been given except that it takes place prior to the earlier films. Expect this movie for a late August release.

Many of the other sequels being released are all ensured to brief, if any, box office success. The Apes are back once again in the forthcoming release "Return to the Planet of the Apes" by Alicia Burton. This film places the future of humankind in the hands of some talking apes once again (and they pay screenwriters to think up this material).

"Ghost 2: Lost in Limbo" once again teams up Patrick Swayze and Demi Moore. It seems that Swayze's character didn't make it to heaven at the end of the last film, as he is trapped in limbo only to return to interrupt Demi's life once again. Maybe this time instead of getting Whoopi Goldberg to help her she should call on the services of Max Von Sydow from the Exorcist.

The killer tomatoes return once again in "Attack of the Killer Fried Green Tomatoes". This sequel stars Jessica Tandy as an old southern woman who must take on the interplanetary tomatoes with an attitude. The most unexpected sequel to be released this summer though is "Easy Rider 2: Riding Death's Road". If you thought Peter Fonda and Dennis Hopper died at the conclusion of the original film from '69 (my favorite year) it seems you thought wrong. The freewheeling boys have realized that their innocent vision of America has been shattered, so they decide that its payback time and embark on a cross-country trek of violence and mayhem.

The studios also have a slew of comedies and spoofs slated for release later this summer. "Godfather of the Bride" is the story of a lovable Mafia Don's daughter's wedding, with the title role going to Joe Pesci. Look for cameo appearances by Al Pacino, and of course the Godfather himself, Marlon Brando. Rodney Dangerfield is starring in a new comedy, "Rebel Without Respect". In this film, Rodney plays an aging greaser in the fifties who only wants respect from his son and, of course, his gang. In recent years the studios have realized that they can make a thriller or horror film on almost any subject. Look at "The Hand That Rocks The Cradle" which featured an evil nanny, and "The Temp" which featured an evil secretary. The studios have decided to focus on a different profession for their latest slasher film.

This new feature is "The Librarian" starring Darlene Hearn. It is the story of a quiet librarian who one day can no longer handle the pressures of nagging students and snaps. Then begins the stalking of students and co-workers alike in the stacks of the library. Dewy never saw one like this. This one promises to be a real blood feast.

All of these films will be released this summer. Keep checking your local paper for the upcoming release dates and we'll be seeing you at the movies.

Perhaps you will remember from past Underground life section classics such as "Smoking and Toking in Nepal" and "Shark Wrestling for the Beginner". I invite you to take another journey through my personal, and rather self-indulgent, diaries of my travels, my drinkings and my romances. I have been ingenuitive this year, selling my journal to a tabloid and the movie rights to a television network. They were intrigued by my experiences during my roadtrip. I was driving from Scarborough to Colombia, to help institute a water purifaction project I had developed. My trip was cut short when I was in Lincoln, Nebraska. Having decided to catch a few rays, as it were, I was lying beside my car, listening the album my band released last spring, when four young women approached, asking for a ride to the state line. I invited them to have a few drinks with me at a local sports bar I knew. They agreed and I led them to the bar. I chose the table. "Do you have any fruity drinks?" I asked the waiter. "Do you mean ones served in a coconut shell?" The waiter replied. "Yes. Serve them with umbrellas, if its not too much of a bother." I saw him nod his head so I ordered a round. We were still drinking and dancing when the waiter told me it was closing time. I, although somewhat disoriented from my drinking, I led my four friends from the bar. I suggested we leave by the back door. I opened the door, and stepping with my right foot, I realised it was a receiving door. Although having ingested fourteen drinks, I managed to retain sufficient composure to recall my military training. I pushed with my left foot, throwing myself from the wall. The trash bin broke my fall. My friends quickly fished me from the bin and helped me to my car. They helped me into the trunk, telling me I was too drunk to drive. I felt the trip to be hours when I was finally let out. I could not stand because my legs and feet were numb. They held me up for a moment, lifting my wallet from my pocket and thanking me for the evening. I fell to the ground, hearing my car leave in the distant night. I lay in that cornfield for a unspecified length of time, because they also took my watch. I was looking at the sky, impressing myself by the way I could recall the names of the consellations, even though I had not studied astronomy since the eighth grade. There was a large star I did not recognise. It obliterated my constllations with its brilliant glow. The light landed one hundred feet from me. I saw a break in the light and a number of beings walked towards

Mammalhood: The Platypus
The quest for a true identity in biology text books everywhere.

Stress "Relaxation" Exercise

Laying with Laurel (Staff Contributor)
The Underground's answer to Sex with Sue!

Before initiating this relaxation exercise, find yourself a comfortable position with all limbs supported (kneeling on all fours works). You may find taping (audio or video, wide-angle lens optional) this exercise helpful.

Close your eyes (NOTE: some participants will prefer blindfolds at this point). Your lids feel heavy (cover the eyes, mirrors to the ...Hey mirrors!). Take a deep, slow breath in ... and blow.

Breathe out. Get in touch with the sound of your slow, easy breathing (while it is slow and easy). Scan your body for any tension from your busy day (it's OK to become familiar with yourself); and whenever you are aware of it (you'll know); gently (unless you prefer it rough) release until the muscle (or whatever) begins to relax.

1. Stretch your eyebrows up as far as you can ... hold ... and relax slowly.

(OK, OK, just begin with the eyebrows.)

2. Gently move your closed eyes from side to side (don't roll them back, yet) ... as if you were watching a tennis game (or some other activity where balls fly back and forth) .. and relax.

3. Stretch your lips wide open,... as if to yawn ... and relax. Remember to breathe in and out very slowly. (we'll leave that one alone)

4. Shrug your shoulders up towards your ears ... and hold (No No your own ears dammit!)... and relax. You feel the * gently flowing down your body.

5. Take a deep breath in and slowly blow out (yet another figure of speech), as your "chest muscles" fall back into place. (NOTE: This may not be true for our senior readers).

6. Squeeze the muscles of the buttocks (Your own?!?)... hold ... and (Hey, even we have limits, Damn censorship board, why if Dean Irwin wasn't, Ooops! Moving right along).

7. Stretch your legs out in front of you... (Do you really need us from this point?)

8. Flex your feet and pull your toes upwards and relax. (NOTE: This is only true if working in groups that make your toes curl in the first place. Again, this one may not be necessary for our senior readers.)

9. Spread your toes far apart (For those who did need us in #7)... and relax.

Feel the last of today's tension gently flow from your body. It feels heavy and laden. As you breathe in, think about breathing in "energy" and blowing. Scan your bodies again for any leftovers... let them release from your body.

Imagine the sun coming out from behind a cloud (as you duck from the sheets to the bathroom—maybe moon symbolism would be more appropriate). Anyhow, the sun — gently begins to warm your face, neck, arms, chest, abdomen (ignore that one guys) and finally covers your entire body. Bathed in the golden rays, like some eternal shower. Notice how warm and comfortable you feel. I am going to count to ten, and you will awaken to feel relaxed, alert and refed. (NOTE: Those emphasising #6 may not agree.)

One, two, three (that's often the limit). You begin to awaken; four five, six. (Holy Cow Batman!!). Open your eyes; seven, eight, nine, ten (For God's sake Captain, she's got her limits!!). Stretch (like more would be necessary) and get up when you are ready (like next Tuesday).

Scarborough Athletic Council on the Line for Drug-Smuggling

by Victoria Richards
Sports Editor

The previously impeccable Scarborough Campus Athletic Council has been arrested in its entirety today when a series of known felons, drug-lords and general undesirables were captured throughout the country. What eventually came to light, after an intense interrogation of approximately seven minutes, was that the S.C.A.A. Council members were not all they seem to be.

There innocent appearance at apparently legitimate athletic forays was only the surface; the naivete of the Scarborough student body proved a perfect cover for the smuggling of narcotics!

Oh! The tales of seedy deals carried out in the dim light of the change room; packets and needles handed out with hockey sticks and baseball gloves. It was a sorry day for Scarborough when those WAKE-UPS passed the customs officials in seemingly innocent Kanga-balls. The offenders remain under the intense supervision of the Campus Police (specially trained for just such a crisis) and are being forced to divulge their dark secrets. How this long dark history of Scarborough Athletics should will our Athletic funding is still uncertain.

Inter-Galactic Volleyball Tourney to be Held at Scarborough!

by Victoria Richards
Sports Editor

The Enterprise staff has contacted the Scarborough Athletics Department through StarFleet in an attempt to bridge the alien-Scarborough student cultural gap. The interplanetary voyagers have decided to "make it so" and get down and dirty (no phasers barred) on the Scarborough volley-ball courts. Students interested in supporting this event can contact your nearest Klingon representative (try Eric Mok-sorry, its the forehead) to make your contribution. All proceeds will go to the notorious "Save the Android" fund.

The only hold-up at this point in time (once the transporter deck is fully functional again) is that the Federation remains undecided regarding the participation of certain, shall we say...alien life forms ? Mr. Data, an android "life-form" may not get the opportunity to participate in this special entertainment, perhaps missing a valuable opportunity to become more human. Hopeful crew members suggest paring down "Mr. Data's" unnatural reflex time. However, what green-blooded android in his right circuit lobe would agree to that?

Anyway, first prize is a dinner for the Champs with Captain Jean-Luc Picard, followed by second prize which is the chance to rip Lieutenant Geordi's visor off. Third place tourney winners will be pleased to see Wesley Crusher being brutally slaughtered in full holo-deck fashion.

P.S. How much does the Federation know about Trills?

Scarborough to Bid for BMX Track

by Victoria Richards
Sports Editor

Due to the inordinately dismal condition of the Scarborough Campus outer parking lots, Administration has decided to both raise parking fees while completely doing away with the outer parking lots.

This revenue saving move coupled with less parking space will also, hopefully, be enhanced by an attractive new BMX track. The parking lots seem almost ready-made with craters the size of Venus masked discreetly under the title "potholes...requiring some minor repairs." So instead of driving to school from neighbouring communities such as Ajax and Orangeville, students will be encouraged to bike, with perhaps even free or minimal (1250.00$$/hour) fees to relax during their free hours at the Scarborough Campus BMX trails, located at sunny Morningside and Ellesmere.

If this move proves even less successful than typical administration "revenue-generating student starving get-rich quick schemes", a community GO-KART establishment is planned -- again offering special student rates of a mere 139.99$$$/15min. Own GO-KART required.

Students Get Floored by Athletics Department

The Scarborough Campus gym is being re-floored next year. The Athletics Department is removing the rubberized floor in order to have a parque floor installed.

This decision is after the Athletics Department had a discussion last week. They decided that there were too many injuries to students, especially twisted ankles.

With this new floor there comes some restrictions as to what can and can't be played in the gym.

Intramural hockey will have to be cancelled because the hockey sticks will damage the floor.

Basketball will still be played but the gym will be monitored carefully so as to catch students who are playing with the wrong sort of shoe - only rubber, non-marking soles will be allowed.

Badminton, volleyball and handball will also still be allowed to be continue but kangaball will be forced to stop.

Although the decision has been made by the Athletics Department, they still must acquire the funding with which to purchase the new floor. The Department will be holding a referendum on this in the Council Chambers on Wednesday April 21, 1993. Join in and voice your opinion.

Dumb Jocks Anonymous

Ever look around and realize you don't know how to read...or write? Couldn't fit it in between hockey and basketball, huh? The first "Dumb Jocks Anonymous" meeting will be conducted in the Common Room on Thurs. April 10, 1993.

Interested in Hangliding?

Interested in soaring over the romantic sites of Scarborough with only a cheesy throw-together set of metal bars and a dishtowel? Sound good to you? Meet in the Meeting Place to sign up!

Athlete's Foot Fundraiser

Ever experienced itchy burning toe fungus so potent your roommate can't stand it? Well, come on out to support others in the same boat (or changeroom) in our annual bakesale! Footwear required at all times.

Equipment Sale

Can't seem to get rid of your old equipment? Well, it probably reeks. However, feel free to come to the great sports equipment exchange in the Meeting Place where people as poor as you will trade you their stinky equipment for a pittance.

Mud-Wrestling League

Hello. My name is Oswald, and I'd like to be your friend if your big, burly and like leather. I am also VERY interested in starting a co-ed mud wrestling team here at the College. Only women need apply.

S.C.A.A. Elections Invalid?

No. Actually, the S.C.A.A. elections were run clear across the board and appear to have been the only set of elections anywhere, particularly in Scarborough, that didn't involve some sort of annoying controversy that no one ever quite understood. Way to go S.C.A.A!

Will Scarborough College Host 2007 National Triatholon?

Since the illustrious Scarborough Campus Student Council mamaged to raise a stupendous quarter of its meney goal for the "Build Scarborough College a Cultural Hall" fund, this not successful project has had one significant monetart effect on the College; Scarborough actually has some (money). Clear thinkers presently in power have decided a lovely kidney-shaped 400 cubic metre pool is in order for the students/slaves attending the College, and plans for this project should be completed sometime in 1996. Possible locations for this incredible new facility are endless varying from the Meeting Place (with some attractive concrete lounge chairs) to the outer parking lots (save money on digging). The prospect of Scarborough students wiling away their many spare hours (NOT!!) in orange waterwings out on the H-Wing patio is one worth striving for! If this miraculous construction is the roaring success Scarborough's administration is hoping for, then the college will definately place a bid on the famous Nicaragua-Finland-Zimbabwe-Canada Triatholon in 2007. This thrilling event is hosted basically irregularly at any site in any country; whether it is involved in the contest or not. Clearly, the cultural and social development desperately needed would be an inevitable result from such an investment. Concerned students can discuss this vital issue...Nowhere. We're getting the DAMN pool!
